

The 2016 Eco-Solar Home Tour runs June 4 and 5, featuring 14 energy efficient homes and a variety of energy-saving technologies.

Efficiency without ultra-expensive science

SOLAR FROM G3

Their home scored a 93 EnerGuide rating, and includes a four-inch insulated concrete basement floor with an acid wash finish and a two-inch concrete floor in the dining room/living room area for additional mass heat gain in the front half of house.

The home also features triple-glaze argon-filled PV windows, an air source heat pump with electric coil secondary heating, a high-efficiency LifeBreath HRV system, a high-efficiency water heater, a high-efficiency wood fireplace, and a 5.5 kilowatt solar PV system.

"It doesn't have rocket science involved and it's really efficient," said Tim.

"That was the joy for us, and that's the message we want to get out."

Tim and Lucie Heins did a lot of research before deciding on which features and what direction to take in their energy-efficient rural home.
